Built circa 1892 as part of Lord Wimborne's estate, the house has recently been sympathetically restored to a high specification in keeping with its period character, retaining many character features. All of the external walls have been insulated, the Gothic style windows have been re-glazed with safety glass, and there are ledged oak internal doors (with solid pewter furniture), oak flooring, and jelly mould Victorian style light switches.

The house is connected to mains electricity and water, full speed fibre optic broadband with speeds up to 900mbps, and has a private drainage system and solid fuel heating. A conservatory was added in 2018.

Scenic country walks can be access from the property, leading to the river and nature reserve, and the property is less than 2 miles from Wimborne town centre, which offers a wide range of amenities. Local shops can also be found in Corfe Mullen and Broadstone.

A Gothic style front door leads to a reception hall with an under stairs recess. There is a charming sitting room with a shelved alcove and logstore, and a wood burner generating approximately 12kw of heat (with a back boiler which heats the hot water and radiators.)

The open plan kitchen/dining room has been completely re-fitted, included fitted bench seating with concealed storage. It features an excellent range of units, oak veneer worktops, an Esse Ironheart multifuel range cooker (with 2 hotplates and oven), a Neff electric oven and induction hob, and space and plumbing for dishwasher and fridge-freezer.

An open archway leads to a conservatory with bifold doors to the rear garden providing outstanding views over the undulating landscaped grounds.

A staircase with new spindles and ironwork leads to the first floor. Bedroom 1 has a spacious walk-in closet with a sliding door and lighting.

Bedroom 2 has a corner wardrobe, half panelled walls, and outstanding views over the Stour Valley, and there is a spacious bath/shower room with slipper bath, shower, wash basin, WC and half panelled walls.

Approached off a quiet lane, the property has a driveway providing off road parking and extending to the rear of the house. There is a composite deck adjacent to the cottage, an open-fronted timber external kitchen (with lighting and power), an outside WC and a brick built studio known as The Nook, with lighting, power points and stepladder to a loft room.

The large rear garden has been re-landscaped into several different areas including lawns, established shrubs including fig and olive, an orchard with apple and pear trees, and a brick built outbuilding (used as a tool store and potting shed.) There are newly planted photinia hedgerows, and wrought iron estate style fencing and gate.
